

Connecting across borders

The Worldwide Universities Network has members spread around the globe. It wanted a brochure to demonstrate how its Global Challenges initiative helped researchers from universities in various continents to work together successfully on some of the most pressing issues facing the world.

When teams or project partners are geographically dispersed, or work across a range of disciplines, it can be difficult to develop a consistent voice. We interviewed academics across Europe, the USA and Asia to draw together their research across the broad themes of the Global Challenges initiative, creating a publication that showcased the power of international collaboration.
